

The Forgotten Two Per Cent

Increasing public attention has been focused in recent years on the obscure and perplexing problem of mental retardation. The minds of two out of every 100 children never develop normally. They are either born with underdeveloped brains or suffer some brain injury during infancy. It is estimated that there are about 3,300,000 mentally deficient persons in the United States. Nearly 17,000 of them are in Rhode Island.

To get the answers to these questions, the Journal-Bulletin some time ago assigned two of its staff reporters, Selig Greenberg and George F. Troy Jr., to make a study of the situation. Mr. Greenberg has made a survey of the overall problem, with particular emphasis upon conditions at Exeter School. Mr. Troy has made a study of the public school angle of the problem. They have written a series of articles, the first of which is published today. Other articles will be published daily, except Saturday, in The Evening Bulletin and in The Sunday Journal.

By SELIG GREENBERG

waiting and wrestling with inertia and neglect. Recognition of the state's responsibility for the care and training of the mentally defective developed at an excruciatingly slow pace. But over the years Exeter School's physical plant and operating budget have steadily grown. The improvement has been particularly marked in the last decade. During this period, the annual appropriation for the institution has more than quadrupled, and it now exceeds $1,000,000 a year.

Cypriot Bishop's Exile Incites New Outburst

Dulles Attempts To Ease India Fears of Attack

New Delhi, India—(AP)—Secretary of State Dulles wound up a world review with Prime Minister Nehru yesterday and sought to assure Indians the United States would not tolerate Pakistani aggression against this country. Pakistan receives U.S. military aid any many Indians have been convinced Pakistan is accepting the arms to use against India in the bitter dispute between the two countries over Kashmir.

Deadlock Broken

Sen. McClellan Made Lobby Inquiry Head

Washington—(UP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) yesterday was unanimously elected chairman of the Senate's special committee to investigate lobbying and campaign contributions. His election broke a 10-day deadlock between Republican and Democratic members of the special eight-man committee over rules for the investigation.

Sen. John McClellan

General Strike, Riots Protest Britain's Move

Nicosia, Cyprus—(AP)—A general strike paralyzed Cyprus yesterday. The island's protest to the exile of Archbishop Makarios was further underscored by outbursts of violence at nightfall. British paratroopers searched the residence and garden of the Archbishop, leader of the Union-with-Greece movement, and reported they found a small arsenal. They came away with a gasoline bomb, 10 unfilled bombs and 18 rounds of pistol ammunition, British officials said.

French Offer Apology To U.S. Authorities

Compiled From Press Dispatches Prime Minister Anthony Eden, French Premier Guy Mollet yesterday explored means of re-establishing joint Western policies to repair badly shattered positions throughout North Africa and the Middle East.

Green Explains Switch on Vote

Says He Wanted to Force Nixon Stand On Farm Amendment

By ARTHUR E. DUNBAR JR. Journal-Bulletin Washington Bureau Washington—In the aftermath of a confusing farm bill amendment vote in the Senate that included a rare teller's error, Sen. Green (D-R.I.) was sure of one thing yesterday—his vote switch was not a change in his stand, but a "tactical move" to force Vice President Nixon to vote against 90 per cent price supports for wheat.

N.H. Fight Heats Up

Stevenson's Forces Intensify Campaign

By JOHN STROHMAYER Journal-Bulletin Staff Reporter Manchester, N.H.—While outwardly professing little interest, supporters of Adlai E. Stevenson have been engaged in a quiet but intense campaign to lay a political land mine for Sen. Estes Kefauver in the nation's first presidential primary Tuesday.

Four Men Escape As Car Plunges 15 Ft. Into Canal

Four men escaped serious injury shortly before 2 a.m. today when their car went out of control at Mill and Canal Streets, crashed through a section of metal fence and dropped about 15 feet into the Moshassuck Canal.

100 Jumbo Lobsters Freed in Bay

By JOHN WARD The state Division of Fish and Game yesterday liberated in Narragansett Bay 100 jumbo lobsters, caught far at sea at the edge of the precipitous continental shelf, in a long-shot stab at improving the breed in Rhode Island waters.

Transplanting: Marine Biologist Robert Campbell, left, and Chauncey Eaton.

The Inside Story

DEXTER ASYLUM: Varied proposals are studied for using its acreage when the city gets a free hand. Survey-Section PHANTOM BOXER of Elmwood Avenue startles a nocturnal wayfarer—until he learns the answer. THE RHODE ISLANDER PAWTUCKET GIRL at Cambridge University compares it with Pembroke. Education Page

Continued on Page 9, Col. 1

Continued on Page 16, Col. 1

Continued on Page 2, Col. 3

Continued on Page 2, Col. 3

Continued on Page 3, Col. 1

Continued on Page 9, Col. 1

Continued on Page 16, Col. 1

Continued on Page 2, Col. 3

Continued on Page 2, Col. 3

Continued on Page 3, Col. 1